Land Acknowledgement

I would like to begin by acknowledging that the land on which we gather today has been the traditional territory of indigenous peoples for countless generations; most recently by the Anishinaabeg and Haudenosaunee Peoples through the Dish with One Spoon Wampum Belt, an agreement to peaceably share and care for the resources around the Great Lakes.

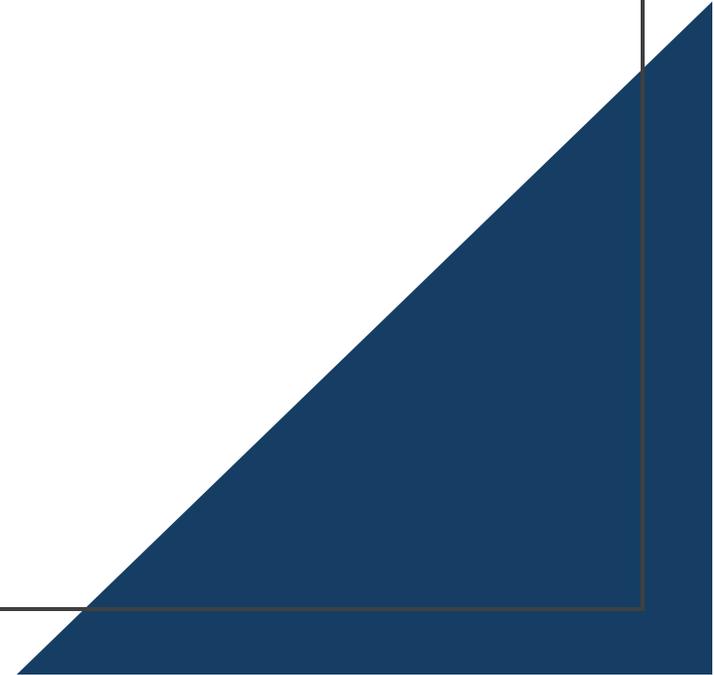

This wampum predates Treaty 3 of the Upper Canada Treaties, highlighting the tremendous contribution these nations have made to our shared history. Today we would like to acknowledge these contributions and how thankful we are, that today, we are able to share this land with them.
